At just 32 years old, Zuckerberg is now the fifth richest person in the world with a net worth of $56.0 billion.

So how did the young entrepreneur go from college dropout to one of the richest people on the planet?

It all started with an idea to connect people online.

After launching Facebook in 2004, Zuckerberg dropped out of Harvard to focus on growing the company.

Today, Facebook is worth an estimated $356 billion and is used by over 2 billion people around the world.

Zuckerberg's incredible success story is a true inspiration for entrepreneurs of all ages.

At just 19, Mark Zuckerberg had already achieved what many people only dream of. He had co-founded Facebook, one of the hottest start-ups in Silicon Valley, and was worth an estimated $100 million. But his incredible success came at a price. The young entrepreneur was embroiled in a very public legal battle with his former Harvard classmates, who accused him of stealing their idea for the social networking site.

Despite the drama, Zuckerberg remained focused on his vision for Facebook, which was to connect people all over the world. And it was this dedication that would ultimately make him one of the most influential and powerful people in the tech industry. Today, Facebook is used by billions of people around the globe, and Zuckerberg is worth an estimated $74 billion.
